

LEAH COLON

Leah is best described as soulful jazz in a pop-colored package. The hints of Tulsa, Oklahoma seldom make their way into her music, only really shining through in her frequent use of “y’all.”

Inspired by artists such as Joss Stone and Ella Fitzgerald, Leah began writing songs in early high school as a quiet, creative outlet. By the end of high school, she realized the quiet outlet had become her favorite part of every day.

Leah went on to attend Belmont University and graduated with a bachelors in music. While at Belmont, Leah was chosen to perform at the Urban Showcase in October '19 as well as the Commercial Music Showcase in February '20. While in school, she was also the opening act for over half a dozen local Nashville artists since March '19. Since graduating, she has continued to perform throughout Nashville and expanded to New York City and California. With 5 single releases and one debut EP under her belt, she now plans to tour for the first time starting the Summer of '22.

As a Nashville-based soulful jazz/pop artist, Leah carefully crafts melody and harmony with the ever-present desire to create inventive yet classic sounds. Her lyrics focus on the authenticity of life - unafraid to address heartache, a sprinkle of drama, and always some sass. With quirk and attitude, Leah hopes to reach dreamers, lovers, and laughers alike.

Quickly becoming known for her powerful stage presence, matched with poignant songwriting, and stylized vocal chops, Leah is positioned to become a force within the new music scene. Her debut EP, 'My First EP' was released April 8th, 2022. Reaching 37.5k monthly Spotify listeners, Colon has begun to make her unique mark. She looks forward to sharing 'My First EP' in addition to her previous 5 singles on tour soon.
